

The IRR (Institute of Race Relations) news network

What is the IRR news network?

We aim to provide professionals in the voluntary sector, activists, students and interested individuals with a rich and dynamic news and information resource on race and refugee issues in the UK and the rest of Europe. We also aim to act as a gateway, providing easy access to related organisations through an online database.

The main areas which we seek to cover are:

- * Government policy
- * Policing and criminal justice system
- * Violence and harassment
- * Asylum seekers and refugees
- * Education
- * Media
- * Employment
- * Extreme-Right politics
- * Managed migration
- * National security
- * Housing
- * Health
- * Sport

We freely distribute our news stories via the web and through emails, which our users can customise to control the subject area and geographical area which they are interested in, as well as the frequency of emails. This unique feature allows users to receive only the information they need and avoids the problems of information overload often encountered on the internet. We also supply other websites with live feeds to IRR news. In order to provide this service, we have developed a network of partners across the UK and the rest of Europe in a range of sectors.

The IRR news network is a project of the Institute of Race Relations (IRR), based in London. Funding has been provided by the Community Fund, but future sustainability will require additional sources of money. If you use this free service regularly, particularly in a professional capacity, we would ask you to make a donation to support our work. Donations can be made online by credit card.
