

Better Health Briefing: Effective communication with service users

Ghazala Mir

Senior Research Fellow, Centre for Health and Social Care, University of Leeds

Key Messages:

- Information about services should be available in a range of languages and formats
- Employing staff from minority ethnic communities at all levels of an organisation increases cultural competence within it
- Families may need to be involved in the communication process
- Effective communication requires action at the institutional as well as individual level
