

Black Youths Searching for Top Role Models

Reach Out / Directgov

Reach are creating the first-ever national role model programme for Black boys and young Black men. They are looking for inspirational Black men who will be champions for the next generation.

An independent panel of Black adults, young Black men and boys are helping them recruit at least 20 role models.

An independent panel is helping to recruit the first Black male role models for the national programme and includes four young Black men, including two school pupils under eighteen, who will work with Ozwald Boateng, Tim Campbell, Simon Woolley and Leroy Logan to help appoint at least twenty role models.

For more information about what REACH is looking for in role models, how models will inspire the next generation, to apply or to join a discussion forum on the subject go to:

<http://campaigns.direct.gov.uk/reach/>